NAME CHANGE JUSTIFICATION FORM

Date: August 14, 2020

School/College Name: College of Family and Consumer Sciences

Department: Financial Planning, Housing, and Consumer Economics

Major Name Change:

Current Major Name: Consumer Journalism (B.S.F.C.S.)

Proposed Major Name: Social Entrepreneurship for Consumer Well-Being (B.S.F.C.S.)

CIP: 52070401

Effective Date: Fall 2021

Justification for Name Change:

The College of Family and Consumer Sciences is requesting to change the major name “Consumer Journalism” to “Social Entrepreneurship for Consumer Well-Being.” In the last few years, the program has adopted more and more Social Entrepreneurship courses due to student interest and faculty expertise. The major name “Consumer Journalism” is no longer descriptive of what students in the major actually do. Students in this major bring attention to consumer issues and design solutions. They are seeking jobs that require experience in innovative technologies, multimedia storytelling, strategic communication, social media, data visualization, network analysis, entrepreneurship, and crowdsourcing. These jobs include titles such as research associate, policy analyst, or program designer/manager. Graduates are employed by for-profits, non-profits, and corporate foundations.

In recent years, the Department of Financial Planning, Housing, and Consumer Economics found the consumer journalism major transitioning into social entrepreneurship and determined it was time to change the name of the major to reflect that. The curriculum contains coursework in a chosen content area, social entrepreneurship, strategic storytelling, social impact communication, and a capstone course where students demonstrate mastery in their focus area. Additionally, students choose a perspectives course, a writing intensive course, and a professional innovation course.

The degree requirements can be viewed here: http://www.bulletin.uga.edu/MajorSpecific.aspx?MajorId=50

There are currently approximately 60 students in the major. These students are passionate and determined that their major name be “Social Entrepreneurship”, which more accurately describes their skill set, knowledge, and ability to address a variety of challenging, interdisciplinary consumer problems in society.

Dean Ben Ayers, representing the Terry College of Business and the Entrepreneurship program, discussed the name change with Dean Linda Fox and Sheri Worthy and stated in an email, “Social entrepreneurship is rather broad (and the definition is somewhat nebulous). However, it is clear that it spans social, cultural, poverty alleviation, health care and environmental issues. These are issues that are inherent to a number of colleges/schools across campus (e.g., ecology, social work, business, public health, arts & sciences, etc.). The proposal for the major indicates that it will focus on consumer problems in society. To avoid conflict with potential future initiatives specific to other colleges/schools in this space, I suggest a name more focused on the intent of the major.” It was determined that “Social Entrepreneurship for Consumer Well-being” was the most descriptive name for the major.

Department of Financial Planning, Housing & Consumer Economics
College of Family and Consumer Sciences
University of Georgia

Dear Dr. Worthy:

Please accept this letter as support for the change of the name of the BSFCS in 'Consumer Journalism' major to 'Social Entrepreneurship for Consumer Well-Being.' We believe this name, while not as succinct as the initially proposed name of Social Entrepreneurship, provides a better description of the major and reflects the major's focus on consumer problems in society.

The required coursework in social entrepreneurship (FHCE 4010/6010), strategic storytelling (FHCE 4011/6011), and social impact communication (FHCE 4051/6051) makes the major name “Social Entrepreneurship for Consumer Well-Being” more descriptive of the learning outcomes of the students. It should be noted that these courses do not duplicate courses within the Entrepreneurship Certificate. In addition these courses, in combination with those in the ENTR program, should help students understand the importance of a sustainable business model to achieve the goal of contributing to world we live in.

Sincerely,

Benjamin C. Ayers

Dear Dr. Worthy:

Please accept this letter as support for the change of the name of the BSFCS in ‘Consumer Journalism’ major to ‘Social Entrepreneurship.’ The required coursework in social entrepreneurship, strategic storytelling, and social impact communication and additional requirements for a focused content area, writing intensive course, perspectives course, and professional innovation course make the major name ‘Social Entrepreneurship’ more descriptive of the learning outcomes of the students.

The social entrepreneurship courses (FHCE 6010 Intro to Social Entrepreneurship, FHCE 6011 Strategic Storytelling, FHCE 6051 Social Impact Communications and FHCE 7011 Social Entrepreneurship Capstone) will be good courses to include as electives for our MA in Nonprofit Management & Leadership. Additionally, our MNML 7947 Social Entrepreneurship in the Nonprofit Sector and MNML 7908S Design Thinking for Social Innovation courses may be good electives for your students when these courses become cross-listed at the undergraduate level.
