

College Board AP Exam Information

Official AP scores must be sent directly from the College Board to UGA for a student to receive credit for qualifying scores.

2019 AP Scores will be released in Georgia on Saturday July 6.

Incoming students can anticipate that their 2019 AP scores and credit will be available in Athena after July 10.

2018 and prior years' AP exam scores will be included with the 2019 AP score release.

It can take 5-7 business days for ordered AP scores to post to a student's Athena record and an additional 1-3 days for credit to post.

Test scores which have been correctly submitted to UGA can be viewed by logging into Athena and selecting "View Test Scores" from the Student Information Menu.

Each score report is cumulative — it includes scores from every AP Exam that a student has ever taken, unless the student has requested that one or more scores be withheld or canceled.

If a student does not see AP scores posted in Athena, please visit the College Board and verify that official scores were sent to UGA. If College Board did not send the scores, please request that they be sent.

If a week has passed since scores were sent and they are not posted in Athena, please email the Registrar's Office point of contact as listed below and request that the missing scores be researched. Please include the UGA student ID number and the exact date on which scores were sent by College Board to UGA.

UGA can only accept test scores sent directly from the College Board. No scores or credit will be posted based on a high school transcript, screenshot or email. For details on how to order your scores and other FAQ, please visit the College Board's help website:
